PLATT AFTER THE ELECTION

I love you Nevada, but, oh! you bay breezes.

ONLY ONE THING WORSE

Only one greater calamity could happen than the holding out of the Journal's subscription list and that would be the kidnapping of George Kilburn. But who would have grudge enough against himself to do that?

WHAT LUTHER BURBANK THINKS

Our president, like Lincoln, has proved himself to be an efficient statesman by steering clear of intrigues, proving by word and act that he is not a partisan; that he cannot be bought and will not be sold; he has proved true to his trust in every instance. Such a man deserves the support of every honest man and woman everywhere.—Luther Burbank.

WILL HE PRESUME ON AUDIENCES' IGNORANCE?

A circular was mailed out yesterday by the Republican County Central committee "inviting" people to be present at Sam Platt's meeting tonight in this city. The circular is a printed affair and it sets forth some of the Democratic doctrines and measures that Platt is going to attack. Among those mentioned is the Child Labor law, which it says is "most ineffective." Mr. Wilcox of the National Republican committee attempted some time ago to pick the flaws in the bill that Mr. Platt will dwell on tonight, but he quickly subsided when he found that he had taken up the unpopular side of the subject and had no ground to stand on when his allegations were met by strong refutations from Senator Cummins, the Republican senator from Iowa, and Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary of the National Child Labor committee. Senator Cummins in commenting on the act, said:

"I have just read your letter of the 20th instant suggesting that certain critics of the recently enacted Child Labor law claim to have discovered a joker or jokers in the act which reflect upon either the integrity or intelligence of those who are responsible for its passage. These criticisms are without any foundation whatsoever and the persons who are giving them publicity are either insincere or incompetent.

"If Republicans are making any such charges against the law in order to discredit the administration the effort is disreputable and must react upon those who are foolish enough to give currency to the charge. If Democrats are endeavoring to impeach the good faith of the Republicans who helped to compose and pass the bill they are guilty of a flagrant offense against public morals."

Thomas J. Parkinson of the Columbia University Law School said of the criticism of the bill:

"The attempt to discredit the Federal Child Labor law because of an alleged 'joker' evidently proceeds from hasty consideration of the act."

Mr. Platt, the circular announces, is also going to attack the Pittman land bill and tell what a vicious measure it is and that "its sole object is to place a large area of Nevada land within reach of the large cattle interests." Will Mr. Platt state what large cattle interests? Can he mention the names of any of the big stockmen of the state who are supporting the bill, and will he mention the names of the big stockmen and big interests who are opposing the bill? By doing so he may perhaps prove his sincerity.

WHAT GOVERNMENT PURCHASE OF SILVER MEANT

Governor Boyle is in receipt of the following letter from W. L. Saunders, chairman of the executive committee of the Ingersoll-Rand company, and comment on which is unnecessary:

"Supplementing my recent letter to you, it may be of interest to know that during President Wilson's administration R. W. Wooley, who was appointed by him director of the mint, made the largest purchase of silver for the government since the repeal of the purchase clause of the Sherman act, 4,375,000 ounces at an average price of 48 1/2 an ounce.

"The price was 47 cents when he started in and that purchase sent the price steadily up until it reached 77 cents. Of course, it has receded somewhat. I have not the exact quotations before me, but Senator Pittman has told me he considers this purchase not only prevented the shutting down of numerous silver mines, but eventually caused a number that had been inactive for many years to resume operations."

WHAT WILSON HAS SAVED US FROM

Like the Esquimaux who was astonished at nothing in New York, except the tallness of the trees, so Miss Dorothy Sampson of Chicago, who has recently returned from many years' continuous residence in Europe, comments chiefly on the large number of men on our American streets.

"In the cities of Europe," she said, "one sees only old men and cripples. If Americans could all experience the contrast in this one thing alone, they would get down on their knees and thank God for peace."

Miss Sampson speaks of the war in a lowered voice and looks around to see that the windows are closed. This habit has grown on her through her war time experience in Europe.

NOBLY SAID

I would be just as much ashamed to be rash as I would to be a coward. Valor is self-respecting. Valor is circumspect. Valor strikes only when it is right to strike. Valor withholds itself from all small implications and entanglements and waits for the great opportunity when the sword will flash as if it carried the light of Heaven upon its blade.—President Wilson.

The most skillful, the most courageous, the greatest statesmanship of the last two years in this world was the manner in which Wilson averted war between this country and Mexico. The reason that the blood of American men—sons of our homes—is not today reddening the hot sands of Mexico, to serve the interests of a few corporation magnates and speculators, is due more to the courage and constancy of Woodrow Wilson than to any other factor in American life. I would count myself poor and small indeed if I were not able to recognize wisdom, courage and public service, even if it had been shown by the chief of the opposing party.—Raymond Robbins, Progressive.

When Sam Platt gets to the United States senate Nevada land will be cheaper than macaroni.

Every time William Randolph Hearst allows his glance to stray toward Mexico his blood boils hot. "Home, sweet home, be it only one million, five hundred thousand acres, there's no place like home," he sings; and, calling Arthur Brisbane and five phonographs, he sets Arthur to work dictating five editorials at once on the Mexican situation. Mr. Hearst is one of the largest landlords in the world. To get to his place in Mexico you cross the border and turn to the left. Walk along the road until you come to his front gate, turn in and walk forty miles, and you are at his front door.
